Description:
GoodGrind is seeking a Junior Software Tester for its new testing team, with opportunities to be involved in the manual testing of various applications for a Swiss costumer.

You will be responsible for:
- Manual testing of web & mobile applications
- Writing and maintaining test cases, analyzing the tests results
- Reporting defects
- Providing updates on test progress or issues
- Working with an international team

You should have:
- Good command of English
- Finished MSc or BSc degree
- Good communication skills
- An eye for detail
- Interest in area of software testing/IT

Advantages:
- Good command of German
- Help-desk experience
- ISTQB CTFL certification

You don't need at all:
- Any previous testing or IT-experience

What we offer:
- Internal training in the field of software testing (methodology, techniques and tools included) and automated software testing (optional at a later stage)
- Long-term career opportunities (professional and senior tester, business analyst, etc)
- Flexible working hours, part-time work and home-office possibility
- Competitive salary (gross 350.000 Ft)

- Transparency and openness of all company processes. You also have the opportunity to get involved in the discussions and decisions.

Additional information:
- Starting in September, 2018.
- Office will be located near Kelenföld

If you match the above requirements and want to know more about this role, send your CV in English to jobs@goodgrind.tech today!